

London, March 2019

On behalf of the Institute of Materials, Minerals and Mining (IOM3), I would like to congratulate DGM on its 100th Anniversary. We are very happy to celebrate this huge milestone with DGM, which coincides with our own significant anniversary this year. These events provide the opportunity for both organisations to reflect on their past successes, to look to the future of the industries we support and to identify new directions in which to drive innovation.

By promoting materials science and engineering at all levels within industry and academia, DGM and IOM3 deliver knowledge and expertise across the materials cycle. This is an excellent time for us to focus on encouraging and inspiring the next generation of scientists and engineers, to offer them knowledge and expertise for the years to come. We hope you have a fantastic and successful year of celebrations – Happy Anniversary!
